A HEROIC HISTORY.

There are not many islands with a bly the coming summer. Miss Whitaker was the redoubtable "isle of one huncomplished educator and shares the hon- | turies occurs, and when the record is resumed it is no longer fable, but authentic history.

At the time of the Persian invasion of Greece the island was populous and prosperous. It was divided into several of peninsular Hellas, were not always ever, except as they voluntarily furnished mercenary troops to whichever side Caterer and Confectioner would pay the best for them. This was done in both the Persian and Pelloponnesian wars, when the Cretan archers were as noted and as dreaded as those of merry England in later days.

The prowess of the ancient Cretans and their insular position kept them DELMONICO AND FRENCH CREAM free from invasion down almost to the Christian era. While the eagles of Rome 'flapped wide wings in flery flight" over nearly all else of the known world that island retained its independence. F. J. CHENEY & CO. Props. Toledo, C. Indeed it was only through intesting the pretext that the Cretans had given aid and comfort to Mithridates and had ill treated some Roman soldiers. The first army was repulsed and almost annihilated by the Cretans. But Rome was determined to achieve the conquest if it took the whole power of her empire. Army after army was sent, and after three years of desperate fighting Rome prevailed. For the first time in her history Crete became, in 68 B. C., subject to an alien master. From that day to the present, for more than 1900 years, she has been a conquered province, never once regaining the independence so long maintained and reluctantly relinquished.—New York

A TERRIER'S REVENGE. mmoned His Faithful Friend and Ob-

An up the state family had two dogs -a bulldog and a black and tan-between which there existed every evi- United States Casualty Co dence of deep friendship. The family went into the country one summer some 16 miles from home. They took the black and tan with them, but left his companion at home. They had not been established in their summer quarters more than a few days before the small dog had managed to pick a quarrel with a neighbor's bulldog, in which the dence or store and give full particulars, rates black and tan got much the worse of etc. the argument, so much so that when he disappeared after the battle his owners were much worried. Thy searched high and low, but no trace of that small dog could be found.

The next morning there was seen coming up the road side by side the black and tan and his faithful companion, the bulldog, from home. The two marched straight past the hotel where the family were staying and halted in front of the home of the black and tan's enemy. In some unknown manner th country bulldog was summoned, and immediately his city contemporary fell upon him. The struggle was severe and prolonged, but the issue was never in doubt. The country bulldog was completely conquered and retired in as good order as possible under the circumstances. The victor, once his task completed, wheeled about and without a stop retraced the 16 miles to home. The black and tan crawled into the hotel with every indication of complete satis faction on his diminutive countenance -New York Mail and Express.

He Knew Where to Go. The Boston Traveler recounts a funny WEEKLY incident which took place in superior court in that city in the trial of one Bebro. A witness, after telling some of Bebro's alleged faults, went on to re-count an unpleasant experience he had with the accused a few weeks before the matter got into court.

"I called at his office," said the witrepresentation. He ordered me from his office, and as I didn't care to be assaulted I concluded to obey him. As I was going out he told me to go to"-"And in consequence of what he tole you to do, what did you do?" inquired Assistant District Attorney Sughrue.

"Went straight to police headquar ters," replied the witness. It is needless to add that the solemnity of the court was disturbed for the next five minutes.

"Treddle's an awful fool, ain't he?" "He's in love, you know." "What has that to do with his being "Don't you know the definition o love? 'Two sculs with but a single thought,' etc."
